ABSTRACT

Intended to assist students and faculty members in locating materials on the life and culture of Mexican Americans or Chicanos found in the Library at the University of California at Santa Barbara, this guide cites 772 books, curriculum development guides, and government publications, published between 1917 and 1970. The guide does not cite the entire library holdings on the subject, but reflects the range of collection as of the Fall of 1971. Arranged according to subject categories, beginning with bibliographies and continuing with special subjects, the guide consists of 15 sections: Bibliographies, Archaeology/Anthropology, Art/Architecture/Theatre, Economics and Labor, Education, Folklore and Mythology, History, Literature, Mexican Heritage, Migration, Political Science, Public Health, Sociology, Curriculum Collection Materials, and Government Publications. Entries are arranged by author or title within each section, with the exception of the sections on curriculum collection materials and government publications. Entries in these two sections are arranged by main entry. Entries cover such subjects as acculturation, agricultural laborers, bilingualism, migrant children, civil rights, intermarriage, land grants, mental hygiene, strikes and lockouts, and migration. Author and subject indices conclude the guide. (NQA)

INTRODUCTION

During the month of March, 1969, the University Library presented an exhibit of library resources on the life and culture of Mexican-Americans or Chicanos. A guide was compiled to assist students and faculty members in locating these materials. Since 1969 the University Library has greatly expanded its collections of materials on the Chicanos. This, the second edition of the guide, represents a substantial revision of the first edition.

The guide is not comprehensive. It includes books, curriculum development guides and government publications. Periodical articles, parts of books, and newspaper and journal titles were not listed. In this respect, the earlier (1969) edition, which was principally composed of article citations, retains a certain usefulness. The guide does not contain the entire library holdings on the subject, but it reflects the range of collection as of the Fall of 1971.

The guide is arranged according to subject categories, beginning with bibliographies and continuing with special subjects, with the exception of the final two sections (Curriculum Collection materials and Government Publications). Within each section, entries are arranged by author or title. Curriculum collection materials and Government Publications are arranged by main entry.

Each entry is followed by a call number and an indication of the location of the materials.

This guide was compiled by Carlos Nájera with the assistance of the staff of the Colección Nahuaque. Copy was made ready for printing by members of the General Reference Department; the Author Index and the illustrative material were prepared by Teri Geller.
